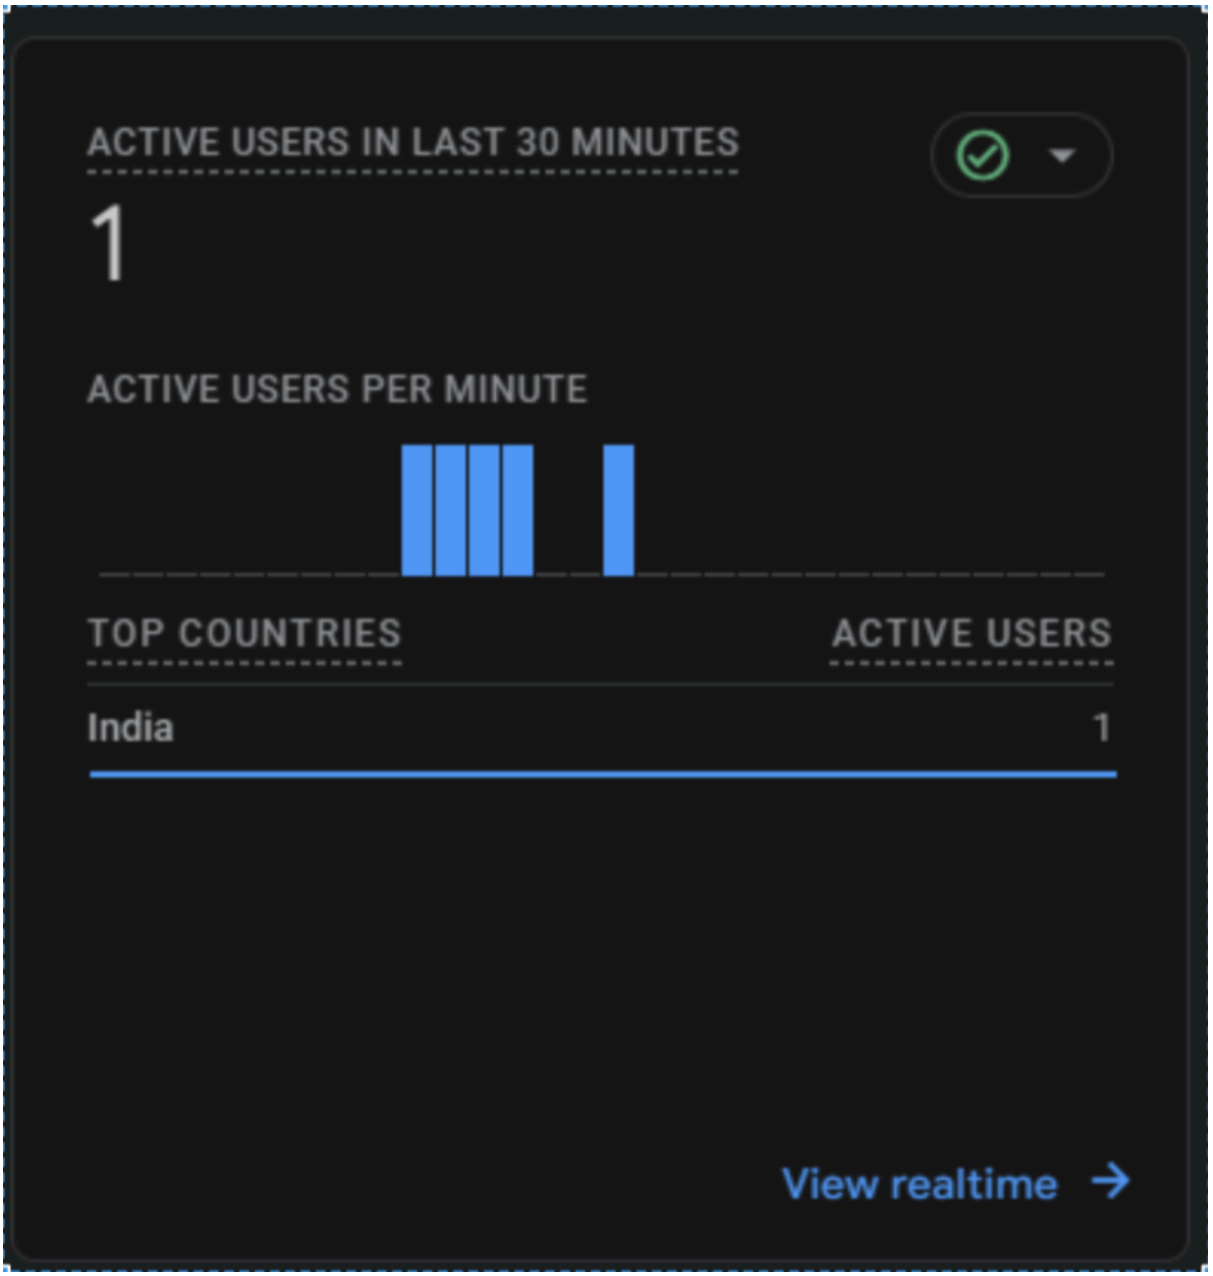
How Firebase Reporting & Add content to see reporting and what is important to see there

Have you ever noticed Active users in the last 30 minutes ?



1. Active users in the last 30 minutes which shows activity as it happens using data from the Realtime report.
2. Which shows the total number of active users in the last 30 minutes and the number of active users per minute over the same 30-minute period.

Do you have an idea how to view your app version with tech details ?

1. In the App version, dimension identifies the specific build of your application that is currently installed on a user's device.
2. There are four dimensions of the App version:

    a. Active users

    b. New users

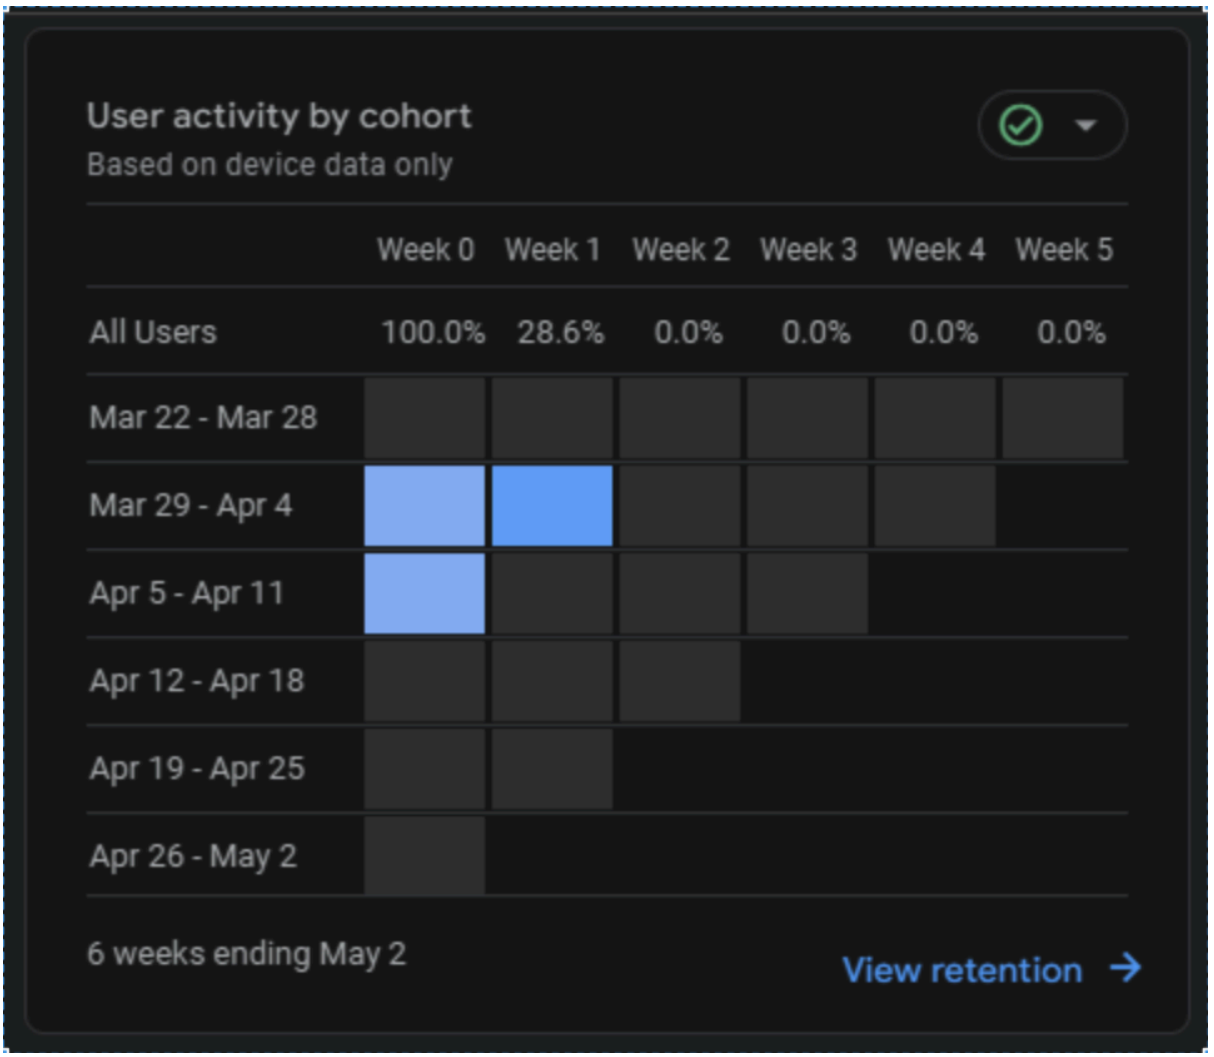
    c. Returning users

    d. Total revenue

View App Versions ->

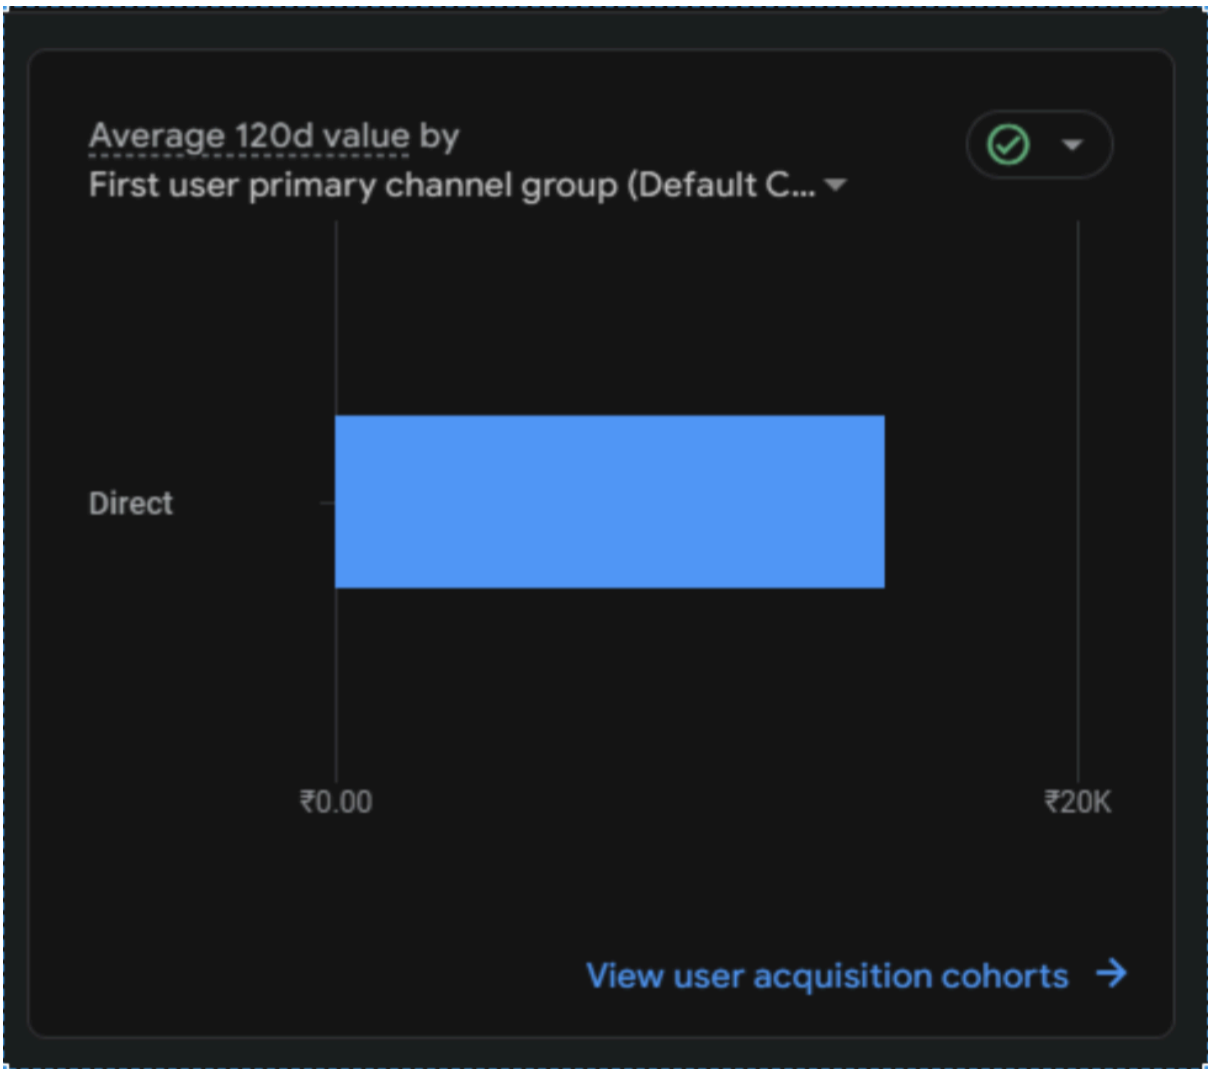
3. Open the Firebase Console.
4. Navigate to Analytics > Dashboard.
5. Locate the card titled Users by App version.
6. Click View app versions at the bottom-right of that card to open a detailed report.
7. Users by App version shows the number of users who engage with each version of your app, including the top 5 most interacted with apps in the specified date range.
8. You can click "View app versions" to open the Tech details report to learn more about each app version.

Do you know how user activity by cohort?



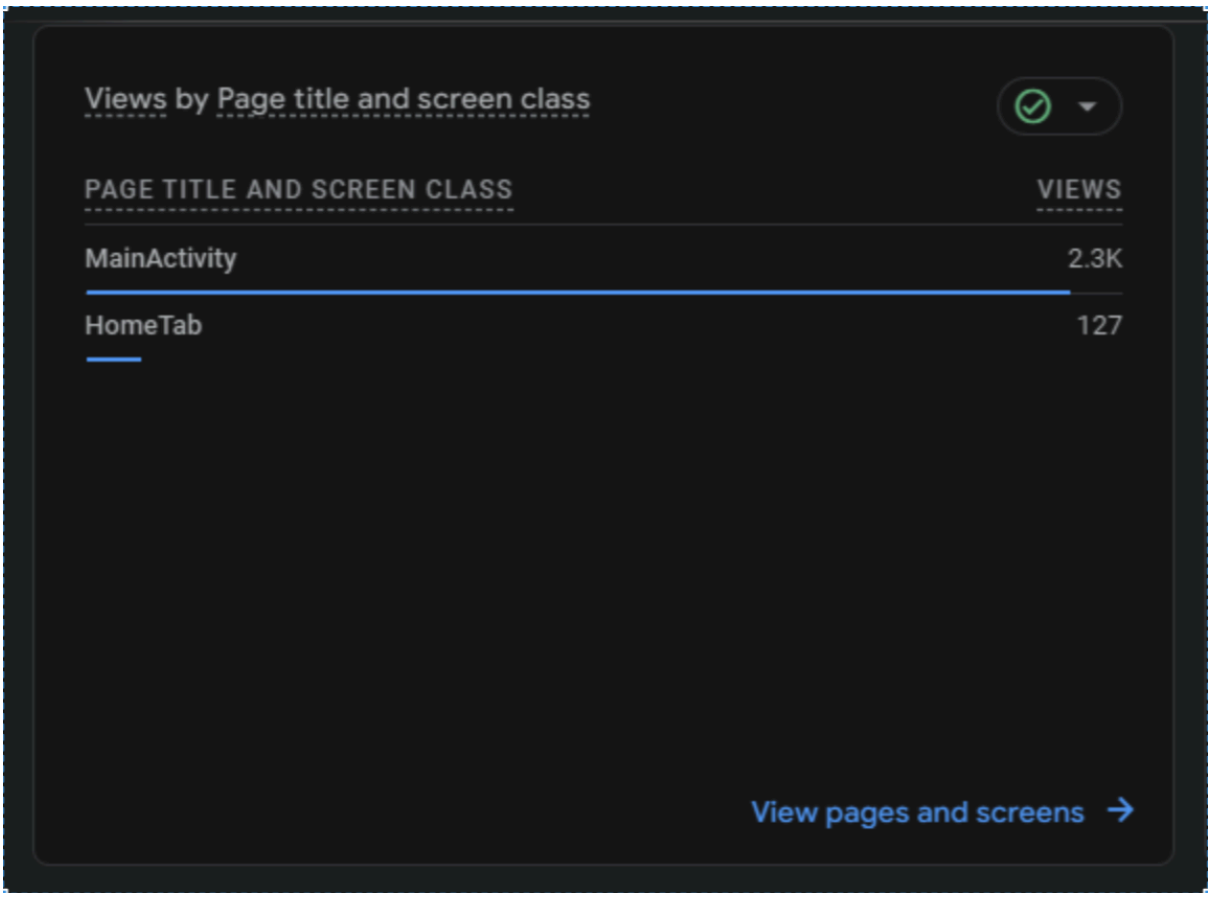
1. User activity by cohort shows whether users you acquire on one date return at a greater rate than users you acquire on another date. Each row represents a cohort.
2. The bottom row represents the most recent cohort, while the top row represents the earliest cohort.
3. Darker shading indicates that a higher percentage of users in the cohort returned.
4. The shading becomes lighter as fewer users return.
5. The chart includes a link to the Retention overview report.

What is the average 120d value by?



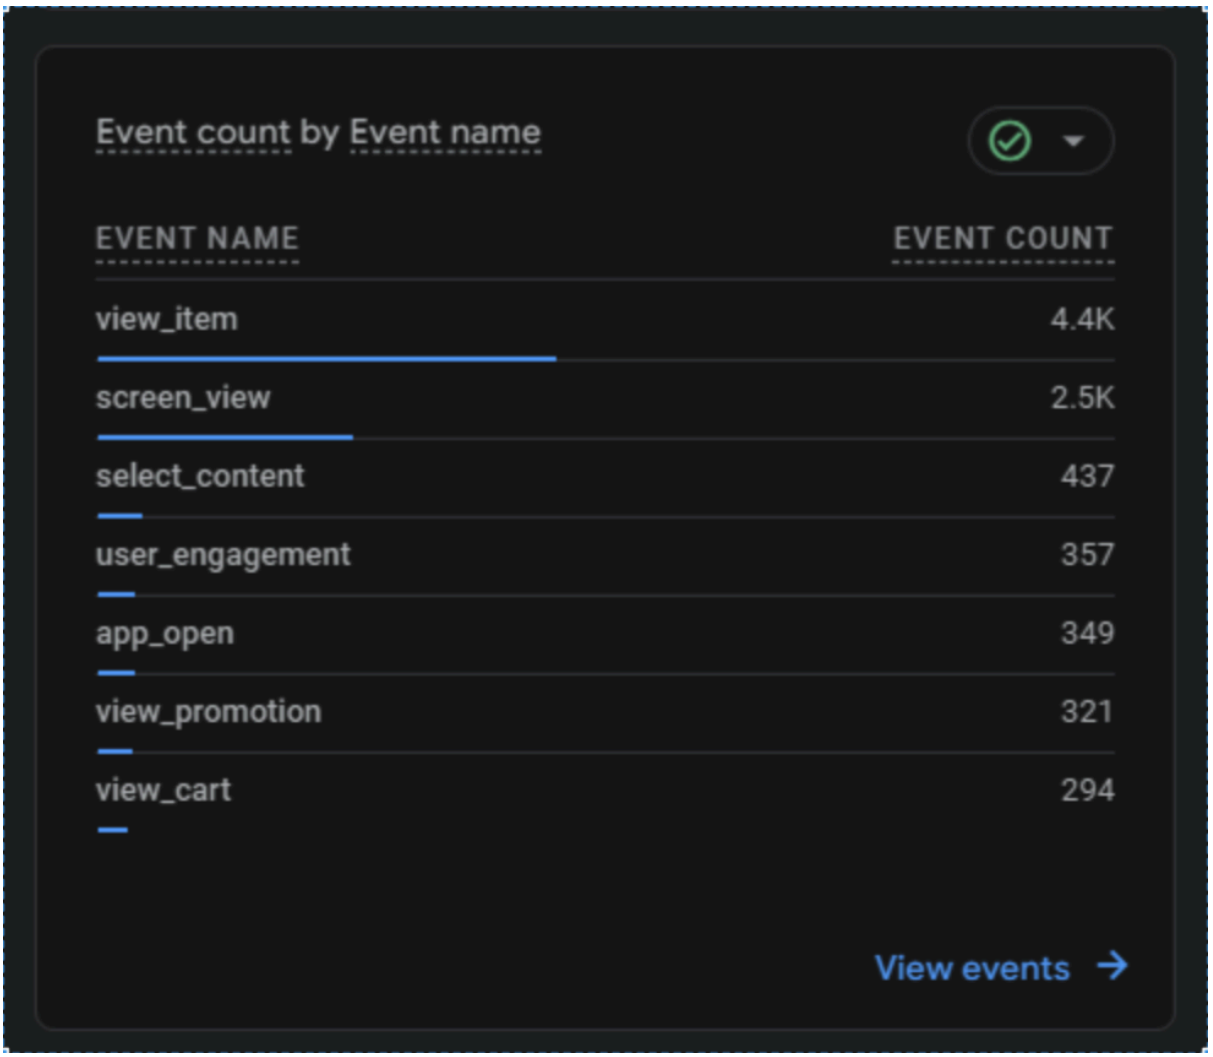
The Average 120d value in Firebase Analytics (Google Analytics 4) represents the average revenue generated by new users during their first 120 days of using your app.

How to Views by Page title and screen class?



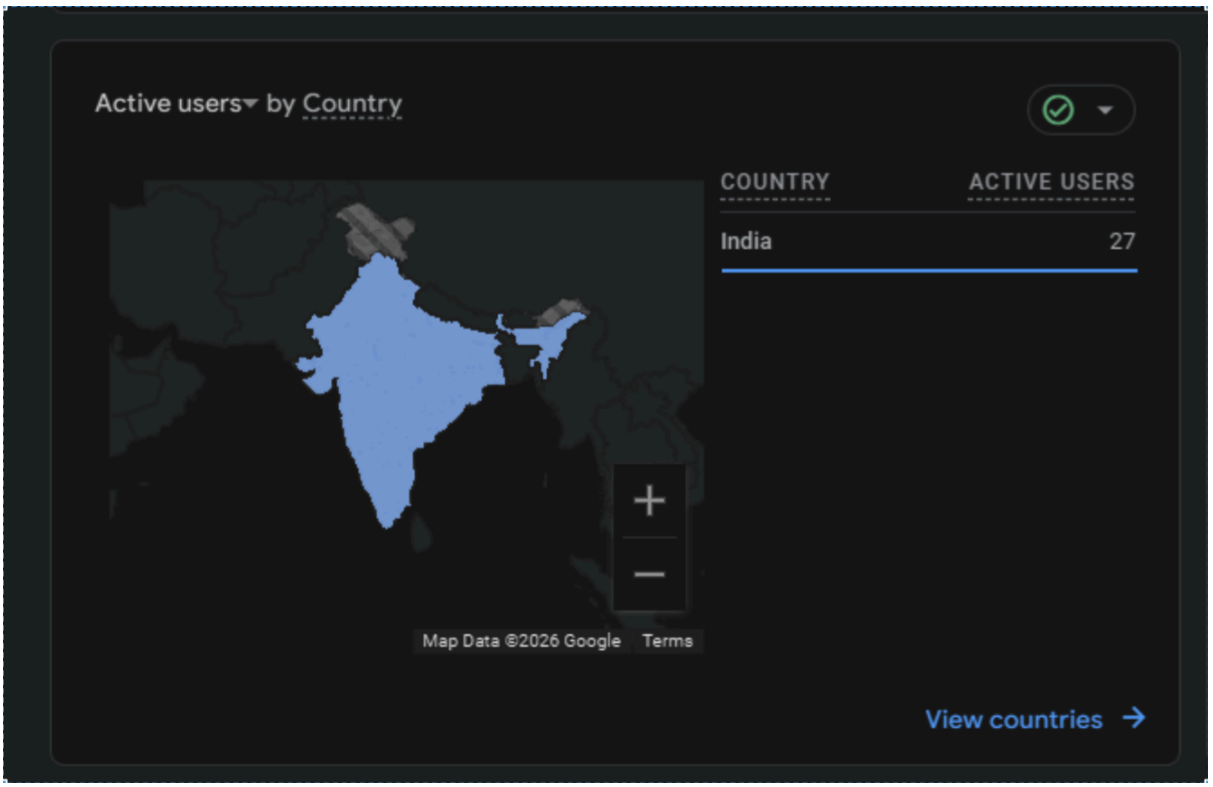
1. Views by Page title and screen class shows the number of times users viewed each page or screen in the specified time frame, sorted by the most frequently viewed pages and screens.

How to see Event count by Event name?



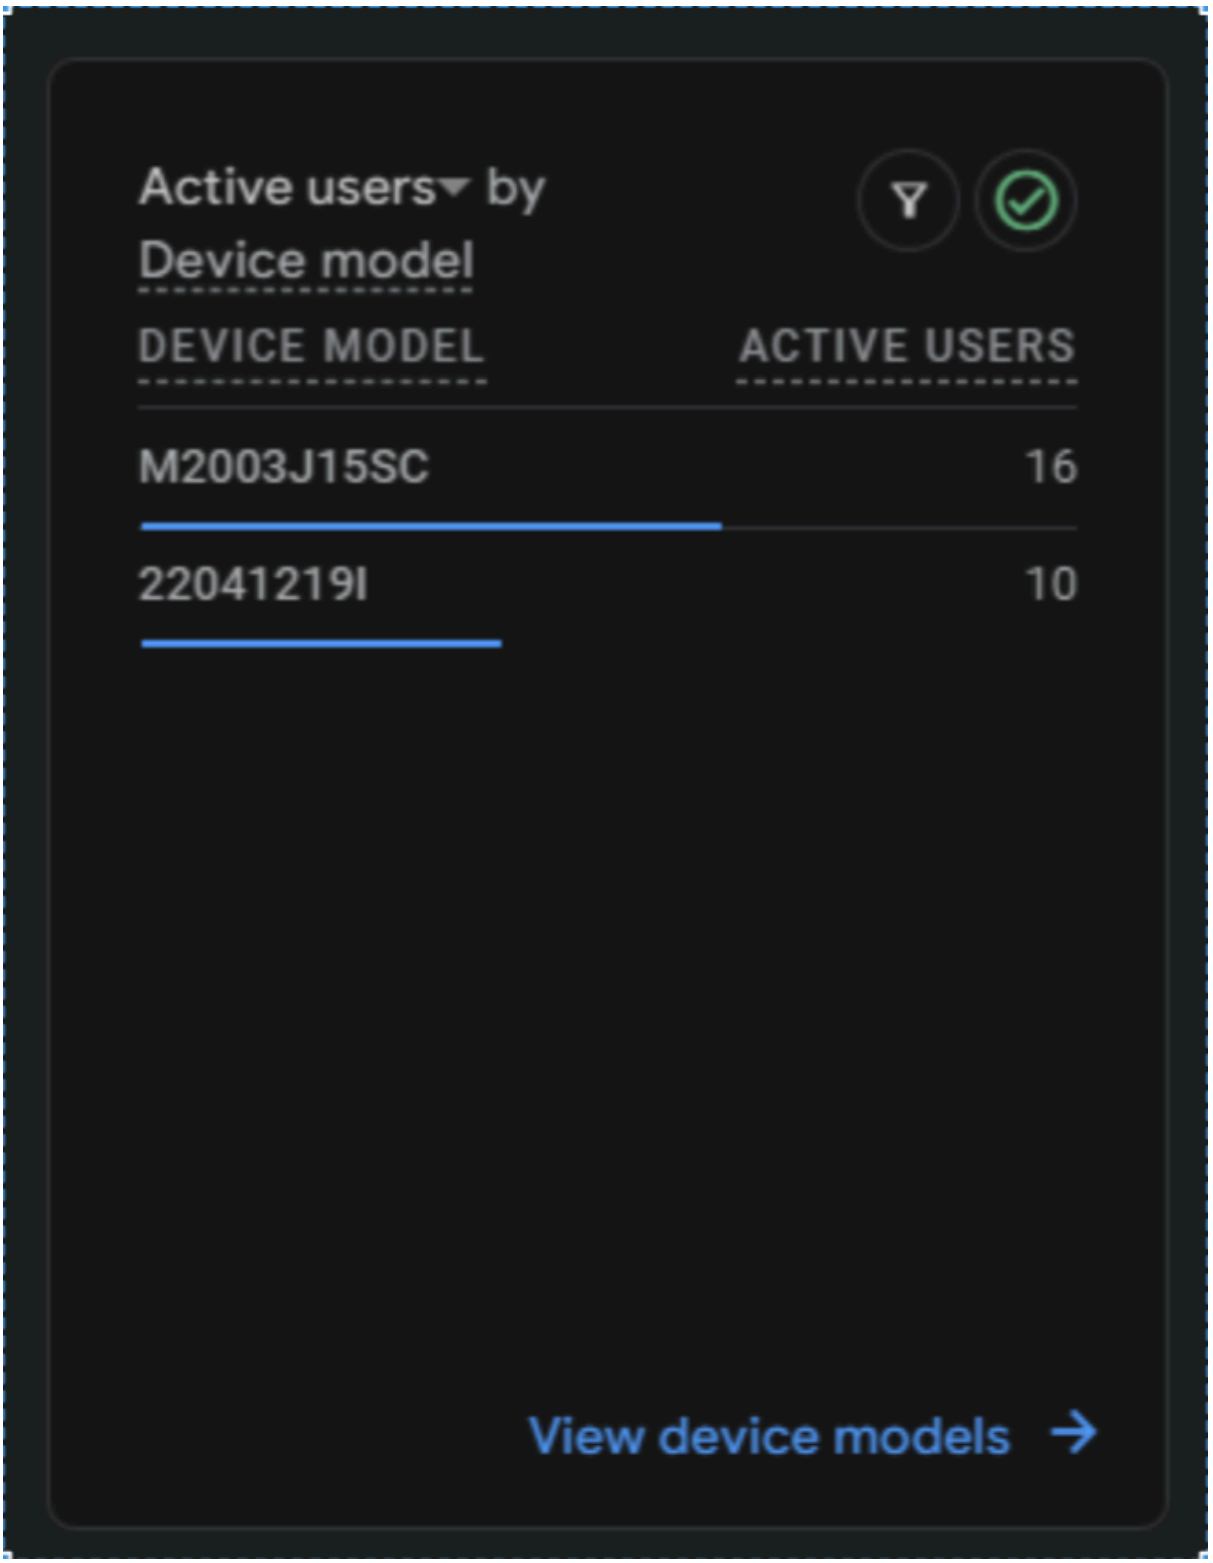
Event count by Event name shows the number of times users triggered each event in the specified time frame, sorted by the most frequently triggered event.

How to review Active users by Country in different countries?



1. Active users by Country shows the countries from which users are accessing your app, sorted by the countries with the most users.
2. The card includes a map of the world where darker shades of blue represent more users from the country.
3. You can hover over a country to see the number of users from that country, or you can click "View countries" to open the Demographic details report to learn more about users from each country.

How to see Active users by Device model?



1. Active users by Device model shows the device models from which users are accessing your app, sorted by the device models with the most users.
2. You can click "View device models" to open the Tech details report to learn more about users who use each device model.